

SURVEY LAW ISSUES IN RECENT COURT CASES

Indigenous Title

Natural Boundary Decisions

Revisiting Co-ordinates

The sheer volume of case law emanating from courts across Canada calls for proactive measures to “check in” periodically on trends and new developments in the law. The practical impact and possible future implications for professional surveyors across Canada of recent court decisions involving each of these topics are explored in three 1-hour webinars.

1. Indigenous Title discusses:

- Treaty rights and nuanced interpretations
- Land calculations based on population at time of treaty-making
- Limitations on achieving reconciliation through the courts

2. Natural Boundary Decisions

addresses:

- “Non-natural” water boundaries continue to confuse
- Apportionment of Accretion
- Clarifying riparian rights

3. Revisiting Co-ordinates explores:

- Ubiquity of co-ordinates and their accessibility by lay persons
- Integrated Survey Areas and the Hierarchy of Evidence
- Re-establishment of boundaries after natural disasters
